

HF Radars are one of the IOOS assets supporting the response to Deepwater Horizon MC252 Incident in the Gulf Of Mexico.

There are currently 6 HF Radars in the Gulf of Mexico. Three are operated by the University of Southern Mississippi and three by the University of South Florida.

HF radar measures surface currents by transmitting a radio wave and receiving the Doppler shifted return signal.